National “Do Not Call” List

Canadians may sign up to reduce the number of telemarketing calls they receive by registering their home phone, cellular, or fax number on the National Do Not Call List (NDNCL). Telemarketers have 31 days in which to stop calling after a number is registered. In April, 2009, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) changed the duration of existing and future numbers registered on the NDNCL to be five years. Registration must be renewed every five years.

For information about the NDNCL, or to register or file complaints about telemarketers, go to their website at www.LNNT-NDNCL.gc.ca, or call their toll free number 1-866-580-3625. Hearing impaired customers should call 1-888-362-5889. You must be calling from the number you would like to register on the NDNCL. SaskTel is not authorized to register a customer on the NDNCL, nor file a complaint on behalf of a customer, nor does SaskTel make Do Not Call requests.

Registering on the NDNCL will reduce but not eliminate telemarketing calls and faxes. Certain kinds of telemarketing calls and faxes are exempt from the NDNCL including: those made by or on behalf of registered charities seeking donations, newspapers looking for subscriptions, political parties and their candidates, non-party candidates, and companies with whom you have an existing business relationship.

Telemarketers making exempt calls must still maintain their own Do Not Call Lists. If you do not want to be called by these telemarketers, you can ask them directly to be put on their internal Do Not Call List. They are obligated to do so within 31 days.

The CRTC will investigate complaints and can penalize telemarketers found to be in violation of the Unsolicited Telecommunications Rules, which include the Telemarketing Rules, NDNCL Rules and Automatic Dialing and Announcing Device Rules.

SaskTel encourages all our customers to explore the options and limitations of the National Do Not Call List at: <http://www.LNNT-NDNCL.gc.ca>

Text Messaging: Know Your Short Codes

Text messaging short codes are unique numbers that are associated with a particular brand or campaign (eg. 436501 or IDOL01 was the Canadian Idol short code for voting). Premium text messages, or short codes, are numbers to which a text message can be sent. They are typically shorter than the ten digit wireless phone numbers used to send text messages from one individual to another. A text message addressed to a short code is received by a web-based application instead of another cellular number. These text messages allow customers to receive specialized content and participate in interactive promotions and games. Common short codes are generally associated with a particular brand or campaign and are common for all Canadian carriers.

While some short codes are free to use, such as SaskTel's short code 43210, many carry premium charges over and above a customer's regular text messaging package. Charges are billed through the subscriber's cellular carrier.

The amount charged is up to the program provider to decide and customers are informed of the price of sending a text to the short code when the campaign is promoted. Customers will also be notified of the additional charge before sending an entry to a premium number. Customers who subscribe to monthly subscriptions that send a "Joke a Day" or answers from "Ask Me Now" can range in price from $.50 to $5.00 for messages sent or received.

Short code users can "opt-out" or decline to continue receiving messages from the short code by texting the appropriate key word to the application. Users must use the "opt-out" key word(s) that were identified at the time of subscribing to the short code. Key words differ depending on the short code; however, they typically include any or all of the following key words: STOP, CANCEL, TERMINATE, UNSUBSCRIBE, or END. If the user is unsure of the key word, it is recommended they visit the short code provider's website for information.

Terms and conditions for each individual short code program can generally be found through the short code provider's website. Current short code programs being offered and links to information about each program, including how to subscribe to or stop service, can be found at www.txt.ca.

WireWatch® and Inside Wire

SaskTel would like to remind our customers that we provide basic telephone service to a single point on a premise and that the premise owners are responsible for the cost and maintenance of their inside wiring.

Customers must ensure all telephone wiring and jacks are CSA (Canadian Standards Association) approved and placement of all wire conforms to the Canadian Electrical Code. On construction of all new single dwelling buildings, customers are responsible for providing an access hole from the inside of their premise to the area near the power meter, the ground wire from the main building grounding system to the main telephone service connection box, and a wooden backboard for the mounting of the telephone service connection box if required.

WireWatch® is an optional maintenance plan for SaskTel single line residential subscribers covering the "simple wire" portion of inside wire and jacks in residential homes. For more information on Wire Watch please call SaskTel, toll free, at 1-800-727-5835.

Phones for a Fresh Start

Phones for a Fresh Start is a SaskTel program that helps keep the planet green by collecting used cellular devices and accessories for recycling, while making a difference in Saskatchewan communities at the same time. SaskTel launched the Fresh Start program on June 25, 2009, and since then has recycled over 6,000 cellular phones. Proceeds from SaskTel's involvement in the recycling process are used to support a SaskTel community partnership with the Provincial Association of Transition Houses and Services of Saskatchewan (PATHS).

In the first year, SaskTel provided 100 cell phones and 200 prepaid cards to five Saskatchewan PATHS shelters from the proceeds of the recycled devices. Alternative recycling locations to the Fresh Start drop bins at SaskTel Stores are listed on sasktel.com. To protect your privacy, please remove all personal information before recycling your devices.
